

50 percent of the population already lives in coastal counties, and the numbers are rising. To support NOAA in their task, Congress must provide it with a full organic act. With an organic act, the offices that run the core programs that Americans nation-wide depend on would be provided with an established mission. A clear mission would help NOAA prioritize and justify itself during appropriations, perhaps heading off the crippling cuts that are leveled against it each year. Guidance from Congress would also help NOAA reorganize and enhance inter-office and inter-agency communication, thus making NOAA operations more efficient and streamlined.

While I support H.R. 5450 for taking us toward the goal of authorizing NOAA, we must remember it only takes us halfway. By authorizing only the atmospheric and educational components of NOAA, we fail half of this vital agency, and I urge Congress to make a full organic act for NOAA a priority.

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 21, 2006

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, from hurricanes and floods in Latin America to earthquakes in Asia, natural disasters are increasingly becoming a regular feature of life for large numbers of people around the globe. By 2050, two billion people are expected to be especially vulnerable to floods due to growing populations, indiscriminate logging on hillsides, rapid urbanization, and increasing development along coasts and in other hazardous regions.

Thankfully, as I have seen on trips to disaster-affected area, the devastating impacts of natural disasters can be mitigated by building in safer locations, constructing sturdier dwellings, enforcing sound building practices, and protecting natural ecosystems. For example, communities in Indonesia that had intact mangrove stands along their coastlines were protected from the full force of the December 2004 tsunami and faced less damage and fewer lives lost. In many Indonesian towns, the only buildings left standing were the mosques, having been built to a higher standard.

In 2004, the United States spent $529 million responding to disasters in foreign countries, making us the largest donor for disaster relief, recovery, and rehabilitation. However, according to a study by the World Bank and the United States Geological Survey, during the 1990s, $40 billion invested globally in preventive measures could have saved $280 billion in disaster relief funds and saved countless lives.

To address these issues, Mr. BURTON and I are introducing the International Disaster Risk Reduction Act. This bill promotes the use of disaster mitigation efforts in foreign countries, authorizes assistance to help in those efforts, and requires that U.S. disaster relief efforts help make communities less vulnerable to future disasters.

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Plantronics of Santa Cruz, California on being recognized as one of the "Top 25 medium companies places to work for in America" by the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM). This honor is bestowed only upon the most deserving companies in the country who meet high standards of employment.

Plantronics is a hardware company from Santa Cruz that specializes in lightweight headsets and is the market leader worldwide. The company was founded in 1961, and was the first to introduce the lightweight communication headset in 1962, and in 1969 a Plantronics headset carried Neil Armstrong's first words from the moon. Plantronics have remained on the cutting edge of headset technology ever since it's founding and continue to raise the bar in the field.

Each of the companies recognized by SHRM is dedicated to communicating clearly with their employees and encouraging their workers to voice their opinions. In addition, these companies provide generous salaries and benefit packages. In return, their employees are motivated and invested in the organization, making these companies some of the most successful medium-sized businesses in their industries.

Plantronics is known to have flexible hours for its employees, allowing them to take time to participate in exciting activities that Santa Cruz has to offer such as surfing, cycling, and hiking. They have a subsidized on-site cafeteria which serves locally grown, organic fruits and vegetables. Importantly, Plantronics is active in the community, and contributes to local service organizations.

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, it is my distinct honor to recognize the career of Union Organizer and Negotiator Geri Ochocinska, who is retiring after a distinguished career as Director of UAW Region 9.

Ms. Ochocinska has been a leader of Buffalo's Labor movement since 1965 when she helped organize Rich Ice Cream Co. Following this success, she joined UAW Local 55 as a Technical, Office and Professional unit Chair. She was then promoted up the ranks of Local 55, serving at various times as Office Manager, Administrative Assistant to retirement and welfare funds, Business Representative, Vice President and Financial Secretary.

In 1976, Ms. Ochocinska was appointed International Representative, servicing 60 companies in the Western New York area for her local UAW. She held this post until her election as UAW Regional Director.

Elected in 1998, Ms. Ochocinska became the first woman to hold the post of Regional Director of the UAW. As Regional Director of UAW Region 9, Ms. Ochocinska represented the 91,898 active and retired members of the UAW from Western and Central New York, New Jersey, and most of Pennsylvania. She was re-elected to her post in 2002.

A recent article printed in Western New York's Business Newspaper, Business First, pointed out that Geri Ochocinska has risen higher than any woman in the history of organized labor in Western New York. Geri receives recognition as a great negotiator. She is a woman who takes firm stands in negotiations. She also is known for her compassion and for the nurturing ways she cared for and fought for UAW workers.

Ms. Ochocinska's retirement is a loss to the Labor Community of Western New York, Mr. Speaker, and I'd like to take this opportunity to thank her and congratulate her for a lifetime of service to the working men and women of Western New York.
